What this unit covers: harmony in the family and society - relationships, the nine feelings (values) in relationship, and the goal of an undivided society.

Key ideas: The family is the first place we live relationship. Relationship rests on feelings, not just physical exchange. The nine feelings: trust (foundation - being assured the other intends my happiness), respect (right evaluation - the other is similar to me), affection, care, guidance, reverence, glory, gratitude, love (complete - the feeling of being related to all). Justice = recognition, fulfilment and right evaluation in relationship, leading to mutual happiness. The societal goal: undivided society (akhand samaj) and universal human order (sarvabhauma vyavastha) built on five dimensions - education-sanskar, health-self-regulation, production-work, justice-preservation, exchange-storage.

Exam pointers: the nine feelings list (with trust and respect explained in 2-3 lines each) is asked again and again. "What is justice in human relationship?" and "goals of a universal human order (the five dimensions)" are the standard long answers.
